Mandate

The New Brunswick Arts Board is an arm’s-length arts funding agency with a legislated mandate to:

- Facilitate and promote the creation of art;
- Facilitate enjoyment, awareness, and understanding of the arts;
- Advise the government on arts policy;
- Unify and speak for the arts community; and
- Administer funding programs for professional artists.

The New Brunswick Arts Board (NBAB) was established in 1989 as part of the New Brunswick government’s fine arts policy: The New Brunswick Arts Board Act was assented to on November 9, 1990, and came into force on June 13, 1991. This act was amended in 1999 (An Act to Amend the New Brunswick Arts Board Act) in order to extend the autonomy and areas of responsibilities of the New Brunswick Arts Board.

The New Brunswick Arts Board is composed of twelve members, balancing gender, the five regions of the province, the various linguistic and First Nations communities, as well as the various artistic disciplines.

Message from the Chair

I started in this great organization in 2011 as a regular board member from the Acadian Peninsula region, offering representation for classical music. A little intimidated at first, I quickly felt confident after my first meeting. People around the table had a common vision where the artist, without exception, was at the heart of every decision. More recently, I accepted the position of Chair of the New Brunswick Arts Board (artsnb) to contribute to the advancement of artists and our culture. I must thank the outgoing Chair, Tim Borlase, for the work that has been completed and the work that has begun. You have worked hard towards the advancement of culture in New Brunswick.

As the new Chair, I would like to think that our vision and mission are never far from our decisions. We must never forget that we are at the service of New Brunswick artists, regardless of language or ethnicity. Each artist must shine so that our province is seen as a model of cultural success in the eyes of our peers.

Visit to artsnb office

Last October, I went to meet the various employees who make up the artsnb team and was able to familiarize myself with the different projects being undertaken. I would like to thank Akoulina Connell and the employees for their patience and generosity during my visit. You make a great team.

Lieutenant-Governor’s Awards

My first official duty as Chair was to serve as Master of Ceremonies at the Lieutenant-Governor’s Awards ceremony last November. The ceremony took place at Old Government House. The winners this year were: Jenny Munday for High Achievement in Performing Arts, Janice Wright Cheney for High Achievement in Visual Arts, and Melvin Gallant for High Achievement in French Language Literary Arts. I want to congratulate the winners for the wonderful work they have accomplished, a great value bequeathed to artists to come. Also, I thank the Honourable Minister Trevor Holder for his presence and our host, the Honourable Lieutenant Governor Graydon Nicholas. The evening was a success.
First meeting for the working group on the status of the artist

I attended the first meeting on the status of the artist held by the Honourable Minister Trevor Holder. At this meeting, we received a report about the forum on the professional status of artists in New Brunswick and discussed the proposed procedure and roles of the various stakeholders present.

Meeting with the Honourable Trevor Holder and Greg Lutes

In January, I had a meeting with the Minister and his Deputy, Greg Lutes, to introduce myself as the new Chair. The meeting was very friendly and we discussed pending issues. I would like to thank the Minister and the Deputy for taking the time to see me.

Campaign to raise private funds for the year 2014–2015

The Board has decided to support a fundraising campaign to raise private funds. A positive first meeting was held with the firm KMA Consultants this spring. Since the province is facing fiscal challenges because of the deficit, and artsnb has had little to no growth in its budget, we must find a solution to address the problem of stasis given the rise in cost of living. As our mission is to promote culture and support artists, it is essential that our programs are consistent with economic realities. That is why we decided to meet our mission with this campaign for private funding.

Petapan: First Light Symposium for Indigenous Art

I had the honor of participating in the first Steering Committee for the symposium, which included indigenous representatives from across Atlantic Canada. Our financial partners are: The Canada Council for the Arts for an amount of $40,000; $100,000 from the Newfoundland and Labrador Arts Council; $50,000 from Arts Nova Scotia; $20,000 from the Prince Edward Island Council of the Arts; and $50,000 from the New Brunswick Arts Board ($40,000 of which came from the Department of Tourism, Heritage and Culture’s Strategic Development Fund).

Message from the Executive Director

At a conference this year, someone remarked that we are not living in an age of change, but in a change of ages. This statement resonates deeply as I listen to the news, engage with the community, participate in collective work with peers, and observe the work we are doing at artsnb and how we are achieving it.

Buzzwords are everywhere. As much as we might dislike jargon, popular terms mark a change in the wind—and ultimately a changing narrative to valorize the role of arts and culture in society. We hear these words bandied about almost constantly: finite resources, sustainable practice, collaborative method, cross-sectorial development, capacity building, innovation, acceleration, cross-pollination, and hybridization.

There has always been tension between the raw experimental power of art for art’s sake and the pragmatic, sometimes harsh reality of making one’s living through one’s art practice. With a proliferation in new technologies, much is changing. As a public arts funder, traditionally the evolution in arts practice has moved at a fairly even pace. With the quickening pulse of change, artsnb finds itself stepping up its pace of response in programming.

Our Programs and Juries Committee always has an overflowing agenda. We’re seeing change in practice due to technological shifts in every arts practice and we’re doing our best to respond accordingly.

The demography of our province is shifting, with a growing percentage of the population 65 and older. And we’re not exactly the cutting figure in addressing quality of life and social engagement questions for our more experienced citizens. We are also confident that by initiating new partnerships and programming innovations we can open more expressive space for newcomers so that they see themselves reflected back. An expressive citizen is an engaged citizen, and once people are engaged they have every reason to stay.

Through the discipline-specific meetings we have held for Visual Arts, Theatre, and Fine Craft (other disciplines will be convened in the coming months), we have heard loud and clear that one of the biggest hurdles artists face is accessing opportunities outside New Brunswick — be that professional development for a particular practice, networking opportunities, or developing new markets for work produced here. In order to get New Brunswick on the map, we need to find new ways to facilitate strategic globetrotting. We have been exploring who might be strategic partners: the Department of Economic Development; the Population Growth division of the Department of Post-Secondary Education, Training and Labour; the New Brunswick Council on Research and Innovation; the Deshpande Foundation; universities; the Atlantic Aging Institute; and the NB Innovation Foundation. If resources are tight in New Brunswick, then it is time for all to identify how we can partner to achieve common goals through new methods that valorize the role of the artist as a catalyst for change in our society.

The collaborative work done in the past year on roundtables for the renewed Cultural Policy, the Cultural Human Resources Development work group, and the New Brunswick Social Policy Research Network marks a shift in New Brunswick: arts and culture is coming into its own and is better understood by government and society at large as a key ingredient for building a healthy society and vibrant economy.

An age of change is a time of opportunity. In a world of competing narratives online and off, artists are experts in self-expression in every medium. Knowing our province’s creative force, I find myself feeling optimistic despite the fiscal challenges our province faces. I feel hopeful, too, that the momentum, awareness, capacity building, and strategic funding from the NB Department of Tourism, Heritage and Culture. This is a groundbreaking initiative between artists in Atlantic Canada.

Through an Aboriginal Youth Internship Program grant from the Joint Economic Development Initiative (JEDI), we hired two part-time Aboriginal Outreach Officers: Natalie Sappier and Katie Nicholas. They have visited 14 of 15 First Nations communities so far, delivering workshops on artsnb's programs and on how to prepare a strong grant application. The APAF Creative Residency program is also in place, facilitating networking and exchange between artists in Atlantic Canada.

A new component for Professionalization and Promotion is ready to be added to the Career Development program. An age of change is a time of opportunity. In a world of competing narratives online and off, artists are experts in self-expression in every medium. Knowing our province’s creative force, I find myself feeling optimistic despite the fiscal challenges our province faces. I feel hopeful, too, that the momentum, awareness, capacity building, and planning is well under way for Petapan: First Light Indigenous Arts Symposium, thanks to the Atlantic Public Art Funders (APAF), the Canada Council for the Arts, and strategic funding from the NB Department of Tourism, Heritage and Culture. This is a groundbreaking initiative for Atlantic Canada. A new component for Professionalization and Promotion program is also in place, facilitating networking and exchange between artists in Atlantic Canada.

Our Program and Juries Committee has continued to work on our Circle of Elders and Youth Commission. And of course my deepest gratitude to the team of professionals and colleagues who keep our programs running, our outreach alive, our communications lines open, and the office motor running. It has been an exceptional year.

Cheers!

Akoulina Connell
Executive Director, artsnb
2013–2014

Activities 2013-2014

Nominations
During the year, the composition of artsnb has remained fairly stable, with the sole addition of Alex McGibbon of Gaagetown to the board. Tim Borlase finished his term as Chair and Pierre McGraw was elected as the new Chair. The current executive consists of Pierre McGraw, Chair; Gwyneth Wilbur, 1st Vice Chair; Nathalie Cyn Picard, 2nd Vice Chair; and Chet Wesley, Secretary Treasurer.

Board Activities
The Board held two business meetings and their Annual General Meeting during the last fiscal year (FY). One business meeting (June 2013) was graciously hosted in Tracadie-Sheila. The other business meetings, (January 2014) and a board meeting and Annual General Meeting (AGM, September 2013), were held in Fredericton.

Executive
The Executive Committee met several times during the year. The Executive Director and the Secretary Treasurer (on behalf of our Chair) participated in the national meeting of the Canadian Public Art Funders (CPAF), which was held in Banff in November.

Finance
FY 2013-2014 ended with a deficit of $32,692. This deficit is due in part to expenses related to the 2013 fire and a foreseen investment in artsnb’s digital transition.

Programs
For artsnb’s programs and on how to prepare a strong grant application. The APAF Creative Residency program is also in place, facilitating networking and exchange between artists in Atlantic Canada.

Capacity Building
A new component for Professionalization and Promotion is ready to be added to the Career Development program in FY 2014-2015. Work has continued towards Status of the Artist Legislation and to secure stable funding for Aboriginal programming. Equity research has been compiled so that as an organization we have a clear sense of our province’s demographics, improving our ability to be responsive to the future needs of the province’s population.

Relevant Programming

Discipline-specific meetings were held for stakeholders in Contemporary Visual Arts, Fine Craft, and Theatre, and next year more disciplines will be convened. These meetings are to discuss the opportunities and challenges facing each discipline and to identify a short list of tangible goals and strategies to achieve these goals. The digital transition is near completion. Workshops were delivered in Saint John to staff from Prude, Settlement Services, and the Saint John Multicultural and Newcomers Resource Centre. artsnb also participated in the province’s five Cultural Human Resources roundtable meetings.

Engagement

Tripartite meetings (which assembles public and private funders from the municipal, provincial, and national levels) were held in Bouctouche, Dieppe, and Saint John. Work wrapped up for the editorial committee of the Cultural Policy Renewal work group. To encourage further cross-sectoral engagement, artsnb partnered with Planet Hatch to host the CPAF professional development meeting for Visual Arts and Fine Craft in Fredericton. artsnb has also been working with the Department of Economic Development, the New Brunswick Council on Research and Innovation, the Fond-Deshpande Centre, UNB, and the NB Innovation Foundation to examine how the arts and culture sector can be better integrated into the province’s Innovation Agenda, which is based on that of Finland (a model that includes a strong arts and culture sector).

Several key conferences and symposia were attended over the past year as well, providing cross-sectoral awareness locally; insight into arts and cultural development best practices internationally; adaptive and innovative practices for leaders of cultural organizations and institutions; and a deeper knowledge of the underpinnings of cultural policy development in Canada:

• Engage 2013 in Saint John
• INNOV@: A Forum on Accelerating Innovation (Panel: The Intersection of Art, Industrial Design, and Innovation) in Saint John
• Walter Gordon Symposium (reviewing the Massey Commission after 50 years) at U of T
• 6th World Summit on Arts and Culture IFACCA in Chile
• HEC Leadership Nouveau Conference in New York
• Maine International Conference on the Arts in Orono
• artsnb hosted the CAF professional development meeting for Visual Arts and Fine Craft in Fredericton
• CPAF Strategic Development Meeting for EDs: On Leadership and Vision
• CPAF AGM – Banff Centre for the Arts Leadership for Change: A New Value Proposition for Public Funding to the Arts
• National Forum on Literary Arts, Montreal
• CPAF discipline-specific meeting for program officers on Theatre in Winnipeg

Equity

The artsnb Youth Commission drafted a new strategic plan. The Circle of Elders convened twice, and three members are also active on the Steering Committee for Petapam: First Light Indigenous Art Symposium. A new member of the Circle of Elders was welcomed: Margaret Paul (Passamaquoddy). artsnb’s Aboriginal Outreach Officers met with our Circle of Elders to broaden and deepen our consultative network. The Department of Tourism, Heritage and Culture’s program officers also met with our Outreach Officers to provide orientation of the programming offered by the Department. A meeting was held with the Population Growth division of the Department of Post-Secondary Education, Training and Labour (PETL) to discuss potential partnership opportunities to improve the qualitative experience and retention rates for newcomers.

Lieutenant-Governor’s Awards for High Achievement in the Arts: The fifth year of the Lieutenant-Governor’s Awards for High Achievement in the Arts was a great success. Three $20,000 prizes were awarded to Melvin Gallant of Grand-Barachois for French Language Literary Arts, Jenny New Brunswick, and a Social Policy Development Weekend hosted by the New Brunswick Social Policy Development Network.

With considerable effort, artsnb staff produced the annual report, organized the Lieutenant-Governor’s Awards, for High Achievement in the Arts, and have been very active in their day-to-day activities, providing constant support to the Executive Director as well as the board. The efforts and devotion of Vanessa Moeller, Deputy Director; Nathalie Rayne, Director of Communication, Marketing, and Translation; Justine Koscil, Director of Administration; Joss Richer, Program Officer; Katie Nicholas and Natalie Sappier, Aboriginal Outreach Officers; and Gary Belding, Accounting are truly appreciated.

The staff of artsnb performed wonderfully in FY 2013–2014. Program Officers attended the CPAF discipline-specific meetings in Visual Arts/Craft that were hosted by artsnb in Fredericton and a meeting on Theatre in Winnipeg.

FY 2013–2014 saw a lot of changes in the office and staff at artsnb. We have also settled into our new offices located on the second floor of 649 Queen Street. Justine Koscil was hired as our Director of Administration, Katie Nicholas and Natalie Sappier were hired as our Aboriginal Outreach Officers, and Joss Richer is our new Program Officer, who will be working in partnership with Vanessa Moeller to run artsnb’s programming. Marie-Claude Hébert joined us for half a year in Marketing/Communications/Translation, to replace Nathalie Rayne who was away on maternity leave. Gary Belding has joined the team on a part-time contract to do accounting for artsnb.

After taking a break from creating pieces for young audiences in 2007, the company DansEncomps launches into work on a new piece with the choreographer Pierre-Paul Savoie, inspired by the tales of Jacques Prévert.

To have a French artist in residence here, in New Brunswick, is greatly appreciated by the permanent team. Chantal Cadieux, artistic director, notes: “The choreographer has chosen stories that performers put in motion. The interaction between the choreographer and the dancers all combine to compose a work of 50 minutes combining dance, speech and music.”

Since the project is aimed at school groups, there is an added educational element. “In addition to the concern for the literature, we will provide young people an artistic adventure that will stimulate their imagination.”

The artistic achievements of Pierre-Paul Savoie are a source of inspiration for the company which can only lead to future artistic contacts and allow greater visibility. “It’s like a breath of fresh air that allows us to discover new paths.”
Several of Élizabeth Marier’s past works were created without colour, just glass—where the work is connected to the form in a given space. In recent years, she began to develop a parallel series in which she wanted to explore her composition work in relation with colour. La couleur du lieu (The Colour of the Location) is research of similar composition to a painting, a different approach to the relationship between form and space.

Her artistic creations are also related to her love of the community, Caraquet, where she has lived for seven years. “For me to live somewhere it means to live with people. It’s part of me, my relationship with my community. This is not just a landscape, but a relationship with the people who live there.”

Her vegetable garden is part of her relationship within her community and where she sometimes finds inspiration for La couleur du lieu. This project consists of three works, including Asperge au jardin d’octobre (Asparagus in the October Garden), Lumière de septembre (September Light) and Pokeshaw en décembre avant la neige (Pokeshaw in December before the Snow). Her compositions are not representations of reality. “My goal, even though I work with glass, and I know very well my materials, my goal was never to achieve a technical feat. My goal has always been to evoke a time, a situation between people; an energy of a particular time in a particular place.”

Strategic Plan

artsnb strives for a New Brunswick in which excellence and innovation in the arts is fostered and artistic expression is cherished by its citizens.

Mission
~ Artsnb is an arm's-length provincial crown agency with a mandate to facilitate and promote the creation, enjoyment, and understanding of the arts; to advise the government on arts policy; to unify and speak for the arts community; and to administer funding programs for professional artists.

Values
~ Artsnb is committed to the following values:

- Engagement
  Maintaining partnerships and open exchange with various stakeholders, including all levels of government, the arts community, and the general public.

- Relevance
  Providing relevant programs and services of high quality and consistent standards, while ensuring that Board decision-making processes are based on the principle of peer review, fair representation, and consensus.

- Transparency
  Ensuring that the public is provided with accurate and thorough information regarding the Board’s processes, funding programs, and operations.

- Innovation
  Recognizing and supporting groundbreaking arts practice by remaining responsive to ongoing developments in the arts.

- Equity
  Promoting fair conditions for professional artists from emerging or minority cultural groups, the disabled, and other such groups to build capacity in artsnb programming. While all people have the right to be treated equally, not all experience equal access to resources, opportunities, or benefits. Achieving equality does not necessarily mean treating individuals or groups in the same way, but may require the use of specific measures to ensure equity.

Strategic Directions
Through its policies and programs, artsnb strives to foster artistic excellence in New Brunswick. To this end, the Board must balance an increasing demand for funding and services against its allotted funding. The following goals have been identified:

- Goal A: Partnership and Resources
  Artsnb secures more funding and greater financial security for the arts and artists in New Brunswick and ensures that the funds currently available are deployed strategically.

- Goal B: Capacity Building
  Artsnb enables artists to realize their potential by offering grants, increasing opportunities for professional development, supporting exchange, and fostering vibrant arts practice in New Brunswick.

- Goal C: Relevant Programming
  Artsnb’s programs respond and adapt over time to meet the needs of artists. Artsnb’s effectiveness relies on the delivery of relevant, efficient, and strategically supportive programs for its artist clientele. An examination of national and international trends, developments, and challenges ensures that New Brunswick artists are supported at home and abroad.
Goal D: Engagement

artsnb fosters public engagement in the arts. While staying true to its ongoing focus on professional arts practice, it articulates publicly the contribution that art and artists make to everyday life and how its mandate relates to enhancing quality of life in New Brunswick. artsnb develops a public strategy. It clarifies how artsnb’s work in the professional arts sector benefits all New Brunswickers.

Goal E: Equity

artsnb maintains that equity is a principle and process that promotes fair conditions for all persons to fully participate in society. It recognizes that while all people have the right to be treated equally, not all experience equal access to resources, opportunities, or benefits. Achieving equality does not necessarily mean treating individuals or groups in the same way, but may require the use of specific measures to ensure fairness (First Nations artists, Black Loyalists artists, newly emerging or existing minority ethno-cultural groups, the deaf and disabled, LGBTQ, etc.).

Action Plan

To achieve the goals outlined, artsnb will undertake the following actions and strategies for the FY 2014–2015:

Goal A: Partnership and Resources

- Continue outreach through the work of an Aboriginal Outreach Officer hired through a JEDI grant
- Explore Atlantic Public Art Funders (APAF) initiatives.
- Bring to fruition Petapan: First Light Symposium for Indigenous Art, and complete reports relating to it.
- Continue administering an APAF Creative Residency program to strengthen exchange in arts practice and a strengthening of regional ties between artists in all four Atlantic Canadian provinces, and to conduct a review with partner provinces of the program once the first cycle is complete.

Goal B: Capacity Building

- Add a professional development component to Career Development where artists can apply to document their work and create promotional platforms such as websites.
- Continue to work towards Status of the Artist legislation.
- Pursue equity funding.
- Pursue funding for stable First Nations programming.

Goal C: Relevant Programming

- Continue discipline-specific stakeholder meetings to ensure that artsnb’s programs address the needs of practitioners in each discipline.
- Create online application forms to facilitate the application process for artists applying artsnb programs.
- Work towards establishing stable First Nations outreach and programming.
- Provide equity outreach initiatives and workshops.
- Participate in Cultural Human Resources roundtables for New Brunswick.

Goal D: Engagement

- Continue Tripartite meetings.
- Conduct discipline-specific stakeholder meetings.
- Continue work with the Youth Commission.
- Continue to meet with the Circle of Elders, multicultural societies, settlement services, Atlantic Aging Institute, government, NBIF, and organizations representing other groups not presently engaged with artsnb.
- Continue to elevate public awareness through social media platforms and strategic PR initiatives.
- Conduct surveys and workshops with professional artists throughout New Brunswick.
- Continue to collaborate with ArtsLink and AAAPNB on Arts Day at Legislature.

Goal E: Equity

- Initiate Aboriginal programming and capacity development.
- Provide outreach workshops to First Nations communities, multicultural groups, LGBTQ, and the deaf and disabled.
- Study best practices in equity programming elsewhere in the country.
Gina Hyunmin Lee, CLASSICAL MUSIC
Arts Scholarships

Gina Hyunmin Lee was six years old when she started playing the piano. “It was a natural instrument for me to choose. I have three aunts and two of them are pianists.” Because of its limitless qualities, she decided she wanted to pursue music at the university level. “There is so much I can learn and so much I can improve all the time. I never get bored.”

Gina is currently in her third year of a four-year undergraduate program at the University of Toronto. It has opened her eyes to the music industry outside of New Brunswick. “Toronto is such a big place with such diversity in music genres and types of musicians.” Gina has also grown as a musician since beginning the program at the University of Toronto. “On a more personal level, I’m starting to get to know myself better and the type of sound and the type of music that I want to make. Undergraduate degrees are very explorative and formative.”

Gina’s arts scholarship was a crucial part in her receiving this education. “Without this grant I would have been required to get a job or more loans, which eventually would have cost more time. Time is the most important thing because you can use it to practice your instrument or just develop yourself more as a musician.”

Whether she’s playing classical or contemporary music, working with composers, or performing outreach concerts, Gina is grateful for the opportunity. “I really appreciate the scholarship; it’s a crucial part of the whole picture of my continuing a career in the arts.”
Louise Bourque, MEDIA ARTS

CAREER DEVELOPMENT — Artist in Residence, Banff

Au revoir / Bye Bye Now

“Film takes a long time for me to make because I handcraft them and am invested in all aspects of production.”

Au revoir / Bye Bye Now is a film piece that will be composed of various clips taken from the home movies of Louise Bourque’s family, spanning over a decade from the early fifties to the mid-sixties, in which people wave directly to the camera. These images will be manipulated and transformed through a variety of experimental processes.

For this project, Louise has experimented with new methods of modifying the image directly, with emulsion and with colour hand processing. Hand processing has become her signature. “An essential part of my filmmaking process involves chemical interventions on celluloid. Two of the photochemical techniques I use are tinting and toning processes by which pre-developed black and white film can be monochromatically colorized.”

Louise travelled to Banff for a residency opportunity. “During my residency, I explored a variety of unorthodox, multi-step tinting/toning processes on rolls of black and white 16mm resulting in richly textured multi-hued footage.” When she realized that the Banff Centre’s Photography Department offered large format digital printing services, she seized the opportunity to experiment and printed large-scale test prints of single frames which were generated during the research phase of Au revoir / Bye Bye Now.

Louise’s approach to film is like poetry. She likes to be evocative and uses archetypal imagery instead of anecdotal details from her personal circumstances. She hopes for a chance to connect to people through her films, both at home and away. “I seek to speak of the human experience. What touches me most is when my films cross cultural boundaries.”

While film in the traditional sense is a collaborative medium, Louise’s work is experimental, and each project takes years of work. “A film takes a long time for me to make because I handcraft them and am invested in all aspects of production.”

Documentation in architecture is something that Stephen Kopp, co-founding member of Acre Architects, has recently realized is important to his company’s practice. “We realized that without photographs of your work, it’s hardly worth doing the work itself in the first place. Without photos, in the public’s mind we have done nothing.” Harnessing and integrating the medium of photography as an art form in itself to convey the art of architecture is the basis of this project.

The idea for the Acre Collective started when a group of artists, writers, thinkers, and designers realized that by working together they could contribute more significantly than any one of them working alone. Now based in Saint John, NB, they realize the importance of grants in their practice. “The ability to research, document, and take artistic risks rarely happens on its own.”

This type of documentation is critical in order to showcase the work they are doing as art, particularly in a relatively rural setting like New Brunswick. “In New Brunswick, architecture does not end up in galleries, as it would in bigger cities. It’s important, and I’m glad it’s part of artsnb programming.”

Stephen partnered with photographer Mark Hemmings to document a local restaurant, En Sushi. “He has a sense and an understanding of light, materials, and people, and how they all work together. He has a good sense of depth and an attention to which details are important to convey. The work is layered; in itself, it is a beautiful photograph — art, but through it is a second perceptual experience. When other people see it from anywhere in the world, they ponder the art of the subject. They see the quality of the architecture through the quality of the photograph.”

“In New Brunswick, architecture does not end up in galleries, as it would in bigger cities. It’s important, and I’m glad it’s part of artsnb programming.”

CREATION GRANT — Category B
Urban Spaces

Sarah Jones has found success as a commercial landscape artist through her storefront gallery, Jones Studio and Gallery, located in Saint John. It was not until she received a creation grant from artsnb in 2013 that she thought it possible to pursue conceptual work. “I never considered doing installation work. I thought I was only going to do commercial landscapes. Since getting the grant, I am interested in pushing myself to do more challenging conceptual work. Hopefully my work is strong enough to be able to function in both spheres.”

Sarah is interested in imagery associated with the urban landscape, like graffiti, cranes, and fire escapes. With her project Urban Spaces, she is pushing herself to look at things in a less representational way. “We tend to think of the urban landscape as fixed, as opposed to organic. The urban landscape is actually in a constant state of flux. I felt that traditional representations of landscapes were not effectively communicating what I had to say, so I wanted to do something non-representational to confront this idea.” She started to look at planimetric maps and is structuring her new work based on these maps, building up and taking away mixed media elements like copper, plaster, and cardboard.

This artsnb grant is the first for Jones, who is enjoying the freedom that it has allowed her. “I find other artists in the region have a wonderful balance between having a commercial studio and having amazing installations — work that is challenging and interesting. Now I feel like I can devote some time, that I can rely on commercial work but still have time to push myself in works I am doing for galleries.”

“I felt that traditional representations of landscapes were not effectively communicating what I had to say, so I wanted to do something non-representational to confront this idea.”

It was love at first sight between the founders of the Théâtre Alacenne group and the director of Mermaid Theatre of Nova Scotia, Jim Morrow. According to Anika Lirette, “Jim Morrow has many things to teach us. He is a master of puppetry, and he took us under his wing.”

Anika Lirette received the first ever creative residency, an initiative of the Atlantic Public Arts Funders (APAF). This year, the New Brunswick artists exchanged with artists from Nova Scotia. Lirette and her working partner, Mélanie Léger, spent two weeks at the Mermaid Theatre, which is internationally renowned for its work and puppet performances aimed towards early childhood. “Puppetry is an art in itself, and we now understand what we have to learn. Our entire process has changed.”

Although Anika Lirette and Mélanie Léger have worked together with the Théâtre Alacenne for 10 years, they find that they complement each other as artists. This residence was another way to reinforce their working relationship. “The object manipulation, it is only the beginning. We have a lot more things to develop and learn. It's exciting because it feels like a renewal.”

The residency was so successful they have already returned to the Mermaid Theatre of Nova Scotia for another three weeks for an intensive course. “We have developed a long-term Anglophone/Francophone collaboration.”

"Puppetry is an art in itself, and we now understand what we have to learn. Our entire process has changed."
INDEPENDENT AUDITOR’S REPORT

TO THE NEW BRUNSWICK ARTS BOARD:

I have audited the accompanying financial statements of New Brunswick Arts Board, which comprise the Statement of Financial Position as at March 31, 2014, and the Statement of Operations and Changes in Net Assets and Statement of Cash Flows for the year then ended, and a summary of significant accounting policies and other explanatory information.

MANAGEMENT’S RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with Canadian Accounting Standards for Not-for-Profit Organizations, and for such internal control as management determines is necessary to enable the preparation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

AUDITOR’S RESPONSIBILITY

My responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on my audit. I conducted my audit in accordance with Canadian generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that I comply with ethical requirements and plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor’s judgement, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity’s preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity’s internal control. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements.

I believe that the audit evidence I have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for my audit opinion.

OPINION

In my opinion, these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Board as at March 31, 2014 and its financial performance and its cash flows for the year then ended in accordance with Canadian Accounting Standards for Not-for-Profit Organizations.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
MARCH 31, 2014

1. Nature of Operations
The New Brunswick Arts Board was a branch of the New Brunswick government until January 2000. At this time, the Board became an arm’s length agency. The purpose of the Board is to provide grants and scholarships to qualifying individuals and organizations to enable them to perform various art functions. It is exempt from corporate taxes under paragraph 149(1)(f) of the Income Tax Act.

2. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies
The financial statements were prepared in accordance with Canadian accounting standards for not-for-profit organizations in Part III of the CICA Handbook and include the following significant accounting policies:

(a) Cash and temporary investments
Cash and temporary investments, beginning of year $ 403,047 $ 446,641
Cash and temporary investments, end of year $ 338,631 $ 403,047

Revenue recognition and expenditures
The Board follows the deferral method of accounting for contributions. Restricted contributions are recognized as revenue in the year in which the related expenditures are incurred. Unrestricted contributions are recognized as revenue when received or receivable if the amount to be received can be reasonably estimated and collection is reasonably assured.

Capital assets
Capital assets are recorded as expenses in the year they are acquired.

Expenditure recognition and expenditures
Expenditures are recorded using the accrual basis of accounting.

Use of estimates
Under Canadian Generally Accepted Accounting Principles management is required to make estimates and assumptions to prepare financial statements. These estimates are based on management’s best knowledge of current events and actions that the Board may undertake in the future. These estimates and assumptions may affect the amount of assets and liabilities presented as at the reporting date and the reported amount of revenue and expenses during the fiscal period. Actual results may be different from the estimates and assumptions used.

Bass-baritone Pierre McGraw is a native of Pokemouche NB. McGraw studied voice at the Universities of Montreal and Moncton. He is often heard as a soloist with the Louisbourg Choir and le Mission St Charles Choir as well as during the Sackville Early Music Festival and the Lameque International Baroque Music Festival. In addition, Pierre is also a contractual music teacher in public schools and singing teacher. Two years ago, Pierre became choir-master for the Gormany Choir. He is also a member of the board of the Lameque International Festival of Baroque Music. McGraw also has some opera roles to his credit.

Currently a resident of Charlotte County, Gwyneth Wilbur has lived in Fredericton, Caraquet, and Montreal. It was in Montreal that she discovered her love of music and musical instrument making, and she proceeded to study violin making in Salt Lake City, Utah. She eventually returned to New Brunswick to attend the NB Craft School’s Fretted Instrument Making Course. She rounded out her studies with a one year apprenticeship with an Italian trained luthier in Montreal. She returned to New Brunswick in 1985 to start her own business, where she still lives and works today as a luthier, working for musicians across Canada and the United States.

Nathalie Cyr-Plourde lives in Edmundston, where she teaches third grade at the Carrefour de la Jeunesse. Having a father who is both a musician and school principal who supports the arts in the school system, she was exposed at an early age to different elements of art. At age 16, she became particularly interested in dance. When still in university, Nathalie integrated into the competitive dance group “The Main Street Dancers” in which she has been a member for the past 21 years. Today, she teaches and studies the styles “hip hop, jazz, contemporary and lyrical”. She is very implicated in the arts in schools and is involved in the production of community shows. Furthermore, she has the opportunity to represent her region at conventions and international level competitions.

Chet Wesley is the Director of Marketing & Communications for the New Brunswick Innovation Foundation. There, Chet develops the creative and market strategy for NBIF and some of its portfolio companies and connects researchers with industry. Before joining the NBIF in 2007, Chet worked for Atlantic Mediaworks, where he had co-produced the documentary Success Is a Journey on the worldwide history of McCain Foods, winner of the 2006 Canadian Public Relations Society’s Award of Excellence. He has also worked as a writer for CBC Television, Report on Business Television, Canadian Business Magazine and Progress and has lectured in finance and business communications at the University of New Brunswick.

Tim Borlase is currently the Director of the Capitol School of Performing Arts in Moncton, a bilingual Theatre school for students of all ages. He serves on the Canadian Conference of the Arts Board in Ottawa as Education Chairperson. Borlase lived in Labrador for 30 years before he moved here, during which time he was Provincial President of the Association of Cultural Industries for several years. He was honoured to receive the Order of Newfoundland and Labrador and an Honorary Doctorate from Memorial University for his work in Arts Education. Tim is also the vice-chair of the Greater Moncton Music Festival.

Since 2010, Nisk Imbeault has been the director-curator of the Galerie D’art Louise et Reuben-Cohen de l’Université de Moncton. A 1996 graduate of the Bachelor of Fine Arts program at l’Université de Moncton, she then went on to study History and Philosophy and Art Studies at l’Université du Québec à Montréal. During her studies she worked with the Atelier d’estampe Imago, and for several years was with the Festival international du cinéma francophone en Acadie as a promotion and communications agent, an activities coordinator, then deputy director in charge of programming. She was the director of the Galerie Sans Nom from 2001 to 2011. She spends much of her time with various boards and committees helping to sustain artistic practices including l’Association des groupes en arts visuels francophones, the New Brunswick Arts Board, the Aberdeen Cultural Centre and the public Art committee for the City of Moncton.

Cynthia Sewell is the First Nations representative on the board. She is a recent bachelor of social work graduate, and she has worked as an education co-ordinator of GED training and human resource development for youth in her community. Between 2008 and 2010, she worked with the board as a First Nations art consultant; she has broad experience building awareness about Mi’gmaq culture within diverse communities.

Denis Lanteigne is from Caraquet. He obtained his BA in psychology from l’Université de Moncton and began college in Bathurst in 1973 where he pursued courses in graphic arts, sculpture and photography. After several years in Caraquet in the field of advertising and pursuing art projects, Denis Lanteigne moved to Montreal in 1982. He worked in the field of headwear, in collaboration with his partner. Styles, colors and fabrics lead him to create three-dimensional objects and he continued his approach towards art objects. In 2003 the artist opened a studio in Caraquet and he continues to work on various sculptural and photography projects. He is the Chair of the Existe Group, a collective of artists who run the Bernard-Jean Art Gallery, and is involved in the Atlantic Visual Arts Festival (or, Festival des arts visuels en Atlantique). He serves on the board of l’Association des artistes Acadiens professionnels du Nouveau-Brunswick and the Commission des infrastructures culturels de Caraquet.

Matthew Pearn is a recent graduate of the University of New Brunswick law school. He has extensive media experience, working as an arts and culture reporter for national news media and community newspapers and radio in New Brunswick. He has also worked in media production and documentary film.

A Master of Architecture graduate from the University of Toronto, Monica Adair is partner of Acre Architects and co-founder of the art & design group The Acre Collective, both of which have been selected as one of Canada’s top emerging firms for Twenty + Change. She has worked for Plant Architect, Toronto; Skidmore Owings & Merrill, New York; and Murdock & Boyd Architects in Saint John where she was project architect for two projects which were awarded the Lieutenant Governor’s Award for Excellence in Architecture in New Brunswick. Monica and her partner Stephen Kopp won a National Public Art Competition for their work in transit for a Public Transit Terminal and were recipients of the Sheff Visiting Chair at McGill University School of Architecture in Montreal, where they were awarded the Sheff award for part-time teaching. Selected to be part of “Team Canada,” Monica participated in the 2012 Architecture Venice Biennale.

Deborah McCormack is a long-time community volunteer with experience as a board member for several national and provincial health-care organizations. Her commitment to the arts and culture has been as a nurturer and supporter of her children who are exceptional musicians with outstanding careers in the arts.

Alex McGibbon studied Art and Design from Ted Campbell and Fred Ross for two years where he learned many of his portrait drawing skills. He taught Art in the public schools of Fredericton for most of his 34 year teaching career with 25 of those years being at Fredericton High School. Alex was instrumental in shaping the High School Visual Arts Curriculum and helped design the Fine Arts Course now used for High Schools. Much of his artwork during the period from 1998 to 2011 has been for the New Brunswick Sports Hall of Fame where he has completed over eighty portraits of inductees and team composites. Alex’s drawings and paintings are in collections at the University of New Brunswick and the New Brunswick Art Bank, as well as in various parts of Canada, the USA and Great Britain and as far away as Japan. He now resides in the historic village of Gagetown.
